Stick-figure stickers of your family might seem cute and a way to personalize your vehicle, but some authorities are warning that these popular decals could also give away personal information to potential criminals. This can be especially concerning when used along with other stickers that indicate information like your occupation, hobbies, and family names.

What can criminals learn about you?

1. Dad is out of the country
2. Your kids names
3. You have a small baby
4. You do not have a dog
6. Where you work
6. Where you live
7. Where Amber goes to school

Use caution when giving out free information on your car, on social media or to strangers. It is not about being paranoid, it is about the risk vs the reward.
